Wellesley Hills, Mass. – On October 6, Robin Nelson-Bailey joined Massachusetts Bay Community College (MassBay) as Director of Human Resources, as announced by President Carole Berotte Joseph.

Prior to joining MassBay, Nelson-Bailey served as Director of Community Education for Dover-Sherborn Regional Schools in Dover, Mass. In that post, she was responsible for directing all aspects of an adult education program, three youth after-hour programs, two summer enrichment programs, and an early childhood center. She has experience with conducting job performance reviews, arranging seminars and training courses for staff development, negotiation of salaries and contracts, and sustaining professional relationships with a wide variety of constituents.

Previously, Nelson-Bailey held the title of Payroll/Human Resources Coordinator for the same district. She had been employed by the Dover-Sherborn Regional Schools since 2005.

"I am very pleased to have Robin at MassBay," says President Berotte Joseph. "I believe that her experiences and training in communications will be most helpful to us at this time. I look forward to working with her as the administrative team strives to make MassBay one of the best community colleges to work at in Massachusetts."

Prior to her employment at Dover-Sherborn Regional Schools, Nelson-Bailey was the Payroll and Personnel Officer for Melrose Public Schools. She has also served as Senior Member Service Representative in the Benefits Calculation Unit at the Massachusetts Teachers' Retirement System where she provided comprehensive and sophisticated assistance regarding retirement benefits and issues to membership of over 85,000 active Massachusetts educators.

"I am delighted to be a part of MassBay and a supporter of its mission," says Nelson-Bailey.

Nelson-Bailey received an associate degree from Northern Essex Community College. She went on to complete her education at Suffolk University, receiving a bachelor's degree in journalism and communication and a master's degree in organizational communication and development.
